THE REPUBLICAN.

Established 1869. BELLEFONTE, PA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 31 1924 Vol. 55 No. 5

MANY LEADERS OPPOSE PINCHOT FOR DELEGATE

State Organization Harmony Deal Encounters Trouble.

MAY LAND ON ROCKS

Present indications are for a spirited fight throughout the State over the election of Pennsylvania's seven Republican delegates at-large to the Cleveland national convention. Perhaps the most interesting feature of this situation is that such a fight has been brought about by plans of the State organization leaders to secure harmony by slating Governor Pinchot for one of the seven delegates. In a score or more sections of the State active Republicans are in open revolt against the Governor on two grounds: First, that he is not sympathetically inclined toward the Republican party; and, Second, that he is not at heart favorable to the nomination of Coolidge for President.

The so-called harmony deal between the State organization leaders and Governor Pinchot was effected at a conference, at which the Governor was present, held in the office of United States Senator Pepper in Philadelphia. United States Senator David A. Reed, Republican State Chairman Baker and Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, vice State Chairman, were also in attendance. State Chairman Baker subsequently announced that the Governor would not be a candidate for President and that accordingly he had been slated as a delegate-at-large. This was confirmed a day or two later at Harrisburg by Speaker Goodnough, of the House, immediately following a conference held by him with Governor Pinchot. The organization leaders and the Governor presumably concluded that harmony had been established and that county leaders and other active Republicans over the State would promptly fall into line for the slate. The result was just the opposite, for many influential Republicans have declared opposition to the Governor on his party record and announced that they will not support any candidate for national delegate who does not committ himself to vote for Coolidge. This the Governor has not done, and unless he does the likelihood is that he will be opposed all along the line at the primary election on April 22nd.

Register of Wills William Campbell, an influential Republican leader in Philadelphia, is among those to publicly declare against the slating of the Governor.

The veterrn leader, David H. Lane, in that city, also publicly declared his refusal to vote for Pinchot. At a largely attended meeting of activs Republicans in the north-eastern section of Philadelphia Register Campbell was strongly urged to become a candidate in opposition to the Governor. He may decide to do so.

Ralph Beaver Strassburger, of Montgomery County, prominent for years as an active Roosevelt supporter, this week formally announced his candidacy for national delegate "in direct opposition to Governor Pinchot." Mr. Strassburger is a pronounced advocate and supporter of President Coolidge. He branded the Governor's administration at Harrisburg as guided only by the advice of theorists and that it has "delivered nothing but an unworkable budget scheme and vague economies." In this connection the Governor has been severely ridiculed for apparently preferring and surrounding himself with a cabinet made up exclusively of "she-men and he-women."

In Allegheny County some of the leaders have been trying to put over the harmony deal, but a number of others have bluntly refused to go along.

What the outcome of this unusual situation will be is just now a matter for all kinds of speculation.

The most sensational attack thus far made on Governor Pinchot was that a day or two ago by State Treasurer Snyder, at Harrisburg. Snyder bitterly denounced the harmony deal as a Pinchot peace arrangement and warned that the party leaders would live to regret entering into any such scheme. Snyder challenged Pinchot to prove from official records that he is saving the State a single penny, let alone $40,000, a day, as the Governor claimed he is doing. The Governor made such a declaration at a recent dinner in New York. Snyder immediately challenged the truth of the Governor's statement, and Pinchot has never made any reply. Snyder warned the party leaders that Pinchot, being interested solely in personal advancement and not party success, will create trouble for the Pennsylvania delegation if he is permitted to go to Cleveland as a delegate. Snyder further charged that Pinchot is not for Coolidge and that his chief desire to be a delegate is to boost himself for President.

Truck Over Embankment.

William J. Parker, in the auto truck hauling business in Bellefonte, had an exciting experience on Wednesday afternoon, of last week, while taking a load of household goods from Bellefonte to Monument for Mr. Hull, a former employe of the Chemical Lime Company. The road is very narrow and dangerous, it is stated, between Beech Creek and Monument. At a particularly narrow place the truck went over the embankment and rolled down an incline about 50 feet to the edge of the creek. Mr. Parker was slightly scratched on the face but was fortunate in escaping serious injury. Daniel Cowher, who was with him on the truck, was not so fortunate and was severely bruised but had no bones broken. He has since been confined to the Parker home. With several helpers, Mr. Parker went to the scene of the accident on Thursday to get the truck back to the road and he found the job a very difficult one.

Whiterock Meeting.

Stockholders of the Whiterock Quarries company had their annual meeting on Monday morning and re-elected the board of directors. The latter elected officers as follows: W. Fred Reynolds, president; Adolph Fauble, vice president; Ray Noll, treasurer; L. A. Schaeffer, secretary. A dividend of 7 per cent for 1923 was declared and the outlook for business in 1924 discussed as being much better. A special meeting was called for this Thursday evening to select a general manager and map out plans for new work in 1924.

Arrested Port Matilda Man.

Dean Allison, of Port Matilda, was given a hearing before 'Squire Byron, of Philipsburg, on Friday afternoon, charged with being the man who struck Chester Hutchinson in an attack at the Guelich garage in Philipsburg in a recent alleged attempt at burglary. Allison pleaded not guilty and was held for court under $500 bail.

John T. Harnish Injured.

John T. Harnish, superintendent of the Bellefonte Lumber Co., had several ribs fractured and both he and his wife were bruised severely, when their automobile skidded on the William Penn highway, near Cresson, last Friday. The car ran into a deep ditch at the side of the highway and upset.

FARM HOME AT ZION CONSUMED BY FIRE

STARTED IN OLD FLUE

Ward Krape, wife and 4 children returned home last Friday evening about 10:30 o'clock, only to find their farm home, near Zion, doomed to destruction. Mr. Krape and his wife, in a vain attempt to save some of the household belongings, entered one of the lower rooms but were driven out by the smoke. The fire was caused by a defective chimney.

The Krapes had been to Zion and, with other neighbors, attended a church class meeting held at the home of John Hockman. Flames were flashing from the chimney, one of the big old-fashioned type, and were spreading quickly when Mr. and Mrs. Krape tried to save the furniture. They got one rocking-chair from the house, but that was all.

A strong wind from the west was blowing briskly and this fanned the flames, as soon as they broke out, sending sparks and burning embers a considerable distance. The heat was intense and the sky was lighted for miles about, so that many neighbors were attracted to the scene in spite of the intense cold. Snow on the roofs of the buildings on the Howard Struble farm, and his tenant property, which were in the path of the sparks, prevented the destruction of those buildings. A number of out-buildings, about the Krape house, were burned, but the big barn was to the east and the adverse wind kept the flames and sparks from it, so that it was not damaged.

The house destroyed was only recently purchased. It was a large, 8 room frame structure. It and the farm of 100 acres were bought by Mr. Krape from Mr. Struble a few months ago. Mr. Krape's family is being cared for by friends until he can make some definite arrangements. He plans to rebuild as soon as possible. He carried insurance but the amount was not learned nor what he estimates his loss.

Mrs. Rachael Harris Dead.

Mrs. Rachel Harris, widow of the late John Harris, of Bellefonte, died last night, in the Memorial hospital in Johnstown after an illess of about one month. She fell, in the train as it was stopping at the Johnstown station, while on her way to visit with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. John VanPelt and sustained a fractured hip. On account of her advanced age—she was past the allotted three-score and ten years—her condition was realized as being serious. She was taken to the VanPelt home and later removed to the hospital where she received the best of care but complications developed and for the past week she had been delirious at times, until death relieved her suffering. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Wagner. She was born in Bellefonte and was a lifelong resident here. For many years her parents occupied the property on the southeast corner of High and Spring streets, recently purchased from the Garman estate by the Decker Brothers. Her husband was a widely known druggist and had the store now conducted by the Mott Drug Company. He died a number of years ago. Surviving are one sister, Mrs. J. L. Spangler, of Bellefonte, and the follows children: Mrs. John McCoy, of Bellefonte; Mrs. John VanPelt, of Johnstown; George and Charles, of Baltimore, Md.; Joe, of Detroit, Mich.; and Guy, of Washington, D. C. The deceased was a staunch member of the Presbyterian church. The body will be brought to Bellefonte on Friday and taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McCoy where funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial made in the family plot in the Union cemetery.

Mid-year Graduates.

Mid-year graduating exercises were held at the Pennsylvania State College on Tuesday evening and 84 men and women received degrees. Dr. John Martin Thomas, president of the college, delivered the address and warned the graduates to be shy of too much effort to secure peace at the risk of our own country's safety by lessening preparedness, as shown throughout history and there is no other way yet found for security, he pointed out. Those from Centre County who graduated were as follows: Agronomy, M. S. McDowell, Jr.; Education and Psychology, F. J. Heckman; Commerce and Finance, R. W. Edmiston, all of State College; J. S. McMahan, Bellefonte, and R. A. Miller, Millheim.

DEPUTY SHERIFF HAD FIGHT WITH MURDERER

Had Wild Encounter With Desprate Condemned Man.

PAID PENALTY MONDAY

Lawrence Roberts, a husky young colored man brought to Bellefonte on Saturday afternoon and electrocuted on Monday morning at the death house of the New Western penitentiary at Rockview, was perhaps the most desperate murderer ever brought here. More than a hundred have paid the extreme penalty at Rockview but never was one brought in with both hands and feet shackled as was Roberts on Saturday. As a result he attracted much attention from the many persons at the station when the Lehigh passenger train arrived at 1:25 from the west.

Roberts is 26 years old and weighed about 180 pounds. He had made a wild attempt to gain his freedom while the Lehigh was passing through the upper part of Bald Eagle valley, it became known, and the men who had him in custody while being brought here on the train were interviewed just after they had finished eating a few sandwiches at the Coffee House.

Sheriff E. M. Voorhies, of Venango County, said in part:

"The fellow's name is Lawrence Roberts. He was an abusive cuss and he and his wife did not get along well together. On August 5th, he went to the home of his father-in-law, James Lawrence, and, without giving the older man a chance to get out of his chair, said, "You've caused me enough of trouble and won't make me any more.' Suiting action to his words, he shot the man dead before he could rise. Then he ran away and was caught in Lawrence County on August 7th, and placed in jail in Franklin, Venango County. He was convicted in November sessions of court.

"He was continually giving me trouble. He got irons from his cot and attempted to make his escape from jail. Everytime, however, I thwarted his attempts. Then, he wrote to his brother and asked him to bring a revolver to him. I also got the revolver and stopped that. I tried to bring him to the death-house without putting a mark on him and think I showed him that I could.

"At Altoona, I noticed him beginning to grow restless and watched him closely. Just out of Tyrone, he said he would have to go to the toilet. With his one hand free and the other attached to my deputy, Charles Richards, I waited until the train was going and then left him go."

Deputy Richards said, "When he went to put his overcoat on in the closet, it seemed to stick for him. I tried to help him and as I did so, he got my revolver, then struck me a hard blow over the back of the neck which dazed me. When I opened my eyes, he had the revolver, it was a .38 calibre, pointed against my body and was saying excitedly, 'Give me the keys! Give me the keys!'

"I got my little finger back of the trigger so that he could not discharge the revolver and tussled for it for about two minutes. I saw him look toward the door, perhaps being anxious to know if the sheriff was coming. Just then the sheriff appeared and I got hold of the revolver. Roberts then tried to appeal to the passengers, telling them that he wanted to commit suicide. He did not cause us any more tronbie from that time as we had him securely shackled."

Incidentally, the colored man was noticed to be larger and apparently more husky than the deputy. He had a wild, desperate look, and seemed to be unusually well muscled. Had it not been for the crowded quarters in which he was forced to make his last desperate chance to avoid paying the penalty for him crime, he would likely have killed the deputy and made his escape.

The sheriff was much relieved when he had completed his duty. He said, "I thank the Lord that is all over. Maybe my wife will be able to sleep some now. If you ever get out our way, come and see me." Then he said good-bye and took leave for his home.

Roberts went to the chair at 7:06 and after two contacts, was pronounced dead at 7:13 o'clock by Dr. J. C. Newcomb. He maintained being innocent and steadfastly refused to hear a minister. He scoffed at death and said there was no hereafter. Previously, he had threatened several negroes, it is alleged, for giving damaging testimony at his trial and had declared that he would return to haunt them. His body was not claimed.

The Gardner—there's a reason.

MANY AT FARM SHOW

A large number of local farmers spent a very profitable and instructive visit at Harrisburg last week attending the State Farm Products Show. The best of Pennsylvania's farm products and her finest livestock brought together at this time is a real inspiration to anyone interested in any line of farming. It demonstrated the height of perfection reached by our most progressive farmers and encourages everyone to renewed effort in hope that some time he may have the honor of producing the winning exhibit in at least one of the many hundred classes.

John Kline, of Boalsburg, one of our local club boys, won first on his potato exhibit in district 3, six county clubs competing. This is a real honor and a fitting climax for his season's work in the Centre County Potato Club. He also won second place in Class 5 "F" in strong competition.

Edwin Way, of State College, placed second in dairy cattle judging, 56 boys from all sections of the state competing.

Chas. Campbell, Penna. Furnace; Eugene Burkholder, Centre Hall; Russell Heckman, Hublersburg, and Owen Smith, Smullton, were other boys representing the county judging teams.

All state wide farm organizations held their meetings at this time which made it very interesting and convenient to attend both the show and such meetings on the same trip.

At the banquet and annual meeting of the Penna. Berkshire Breeders Asso., W. F. Rishel, of Centre Hall, was elected vice-president.

Mayes and Confer, of Howard, placed first in Central Pennsylvania and fourth in the state on their exhibit of Class "A" milk with a score of 97—55, the other three higher scores being 98—80, 98—65, 98—45. This sample showed only 100 bacteria per cubic centimeter, the best of any sample exhibited. It will be appreciated how small this is when you remember that 200,000 per cubic centimeter is the legal limit.

Among those from Centre County who attended were: John W. Miller, J. G. Miller, Pine Grove Mills; Homer Grubb, J. J. Markle, John Parsons and Kenneth Thomas, State College; A. C. Kepler and wife, Pine Grove Mills; J. A. Wright, John Kline, James Bohn, Boalsburg; Rodney McClellan and Fred Ross, Linden Hall; Kenneth Wert, Tusseyville; Fred Hayes, Hublersburg; W. F. Rishel, Centre Hall; J. Will Mayes, Howard; Frank Bennett, Spring Mills; C. Y. Wagner, J. B. Payne and J. N. Robinson, Bellefonte.

LAD DROWNED IN DAM

Millheim School Boy's Body Found After Search.

The town of Millheim has not been stirred in a long time by such a sad tragedy as occurred there on Monday morning when Orian Breon was drowned in the dam at McMullin's mill.

The lad, 11 years old and a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Breon, departed from his home at 8 o'clock to attend school. At noon, his sister Florence, in the same grade as the lad, told her parents that Orian had not been to school. This was alarming as the boy had a good reputation for attending school and was regarded as one who would not play truant.

The parents became so much alarmed that they told neighbors and soon many were searching the vicinity, especially ponds over which ice had been frozen, until it was learned that the millers had found a book-satchel laying along the bank of the dam, which is a large body of water formed by Elk creek. The dam is 150 feet wide at the place and a small hole in the thin ice was noticed about 30 feet from the edge where the book-satchel had been found. It was the lad's book-satchel and it was at once feared he had ventured onto the ice and broken through.

The dam was drained as quickly as possible and about 1 o'clock a dark object was noticed near the breast of it. Making a raft from a large mill door, members of the searching party poled out to the object and found it to be the body of the child. From indications, it had been in the water about 4 hours, so it is presumed he broke through the ice and drowned a short time after he had started to school.

Surviving are the child's parents and the sister mentioned. Funeral services will be held on Friday morning and burial made in Fairview cemetery.

RUNAWAY CONVICTS PAY DEARLY FOR LIBERTY

Caught Near Coburn, Sentenced to Pittsburgh on Monday

ONE REMAINS IN JAIL

The three convicts who were discovered missing from Rockview on last Thursday morning were caught near Coburn on Friday afternoon, after a brief liberty for which they will pay dearly.

Robert Morton, of Cambria County, who was originally sentenced to serve 3 to 3½ years; Frank Campos, from Erie County, 5½ to 10 years, and Frank Richie, of Westmoreland County, 4 year 11 months to 5 years, were the prisoners.

They were dressed much alike and wore knitted caps. Their dress and strange actions attracted a merchant at Coburn, who saw them walking along the tracks. He got in touch with Deputy Warden Fred B. Healy, who suggested that he get aid and take the prisoners, thus securing the reward.

In fifteen minutes, Mr. Healy answered the phone again and was informed that the prisoners had been taken. Mr. Healy said, "All right, officers are on the way."

When Assistant Deputy E. E Davis finally reached Coburn, he found the prisoners were the ones wanted. The three convicts were brought to Bellefonte and lodged in jail.

At a special session of court on Monday morning, presided over by Judge Henry C. Quigley, Morton and Richie, entered pleas of guilty. Campos refused and remains in jail. Morton and Richie agreed that they liked it better at Pittsburgh than here, did not want to come back and would try to escape if forced to come. Judge Quigley, in sentencing them said. "Well, since you like it out there so well, you will be taken back." Morton was sentenced to serve 1½ to 3 years and Richie 2½ to 5 years upon completion of their original sentences.

Both are young men and took their sentence without any change of expression. While one was seated by Sheriff Dick Taylor, he spoke to him in an undertone and neither prisoner showed any emotion.

Sheriff Taylor, with John Garis as deputy, took the two prisoners to Pittsburgh on Tuesday morning.

John Leonard, who gave his his home address as Cloverdale, near Pittsburgh, and his age as 18 years, charged with forging checks and obtaining money through them from local merchants and at State College, also entered a plea of guilty. Leonard did not seem more than a lad, several years younger than the age he gave. "You seem to be a good writer and clever," said Judge Quigley. "You don't seem to have had much of a chance in life. I am going to send you to the Huntingdon Reformatory. You will get a real chance there to make good. Will you try to make good?"

Leonard promised that he would.

Max Rosenthal Paroled.

Max Rosenthal wrs paroled on Tuesday by Judge Harvey W. Whitehead, of Lycoming County. Rosenthal, well known in Centre County as an alleged bootlegger, was sentenced on Sept. 10 to serve a period of 8 months in the county jail. He had served about 4½ months. The court set forth in the order for the parole that Rosenthal has had a general breakdown due to functional disease of the heart and that it is impossible for him to regain his health while in prison. The judge also stated that he has no confidence in the defendant, but great confidence in the two physicians who examined him.

Large Increase in Waterfowl in U. S.

Maps Show Breeding and Wintering Grounds.

Washington.—The United States bureau of biological survey has prepared a series of maps showing the breeding and wintering ranges of six species of waterfowl most popular with gunners. These maps also show certain areas which are classed as both breeding and wintering territory. The mallard perhaps exceeds all other birds in popularity with the bulk of the gunners of the country. It is the opinion of most duck shooters that in numbers the mallard exceeds all other species, and during heavy mallard migrations it would seem that there were more mallards than all the rest of the ducks put together. The American Game Protective association points out in a recent bulletin that this is not true, as anyone who has seen a heavy pintail or blue-bill flight will testify. The bulletin says:

"The wintering area of the Canada goose is even less in proportion to its breeding area than that of the mallard, but we doubt if the strain on the wintering grounds is nearly as severe, because in numbers this goose can in no way be compared with the mallard. It must also be borne in mind that the Canada goose will not rest where it is frequently disturbed by man. Since the passage of the law stopping spring shooting, mallards and other ducks have shown conclusively that if let alone they will again occupy much of the area which was their breeding grange in former days. The Gulf coast states, the coast sections of Georgia and the Carolinas and the Pacific coast country of California, Washington and Oregon compose the wintering section of the pintails of our country, many of these preferring to go into Mexico, Cuba and Central America.

Migration Puzzled Hunters.

"The migrations of these ducks have puzzled gunners since time immemorial. In the late winter and early spring literally millions of these birds go up the Mississippi and Missouri valleys from their winter home to their breeding ground.

"The only map of this series in which the wintering area equals that of the breeding territory is in the case of the blue-wing teal, which not only spreads out over Mexico and Central America but goes on into South America.

"Many men prefer the canvasback to any other duck as a shooting proposition, and perhaps it is the consensus of opinion that as a table bird he ranks at the head of the list. How many men who have enjoyed shooting these birds along the Virginia and Carolina coasts have realized that their favorite game bird comes from the Northwest and that their sport depends upon the care that is taken of this bird not only on its breeding grounds but during its migration across the country? The canvasback, instead of making a north and south migration, travels from the northwest to the southeast and back again.

"Some time ago we solicited the support of an influential man in the interests of the public shooting ground-game refuge bill, and were told by him that he was not interested in the conservation of wild fowl anywhere except on his Southern preserve. He stated that he shot principally canvasback and that he had good shooting, and that he enjoyed good sport because out of his own pocket he employed wardens to patrol his property and keep all gunners off; that he had spent enormous sums in providing food for the birds and that it was because of these facts and not through any conservation work which might be done anywhere that he had waterfowl to shoot on his Southern estate.

Federal Law Necessary.

"We would like this gentleman to study the canvasback map carefully. All he does at his Southern shooting reserve is to congregate the birds in that vicinity. Let unrestricted slaughter go on in the Northwest during the breeding season, and this man's shooting will suffer, no matter how many thousands of dollars he spends in supplying duck foods for the birds and guards to protect him against trespass.

"The passage of a federal law to protect migratory game birds was necessary because no state could protect any species of bird that sojourned within its borders for only a short time. For obvious reasons the different states did not co-operate with each other, and it is believed that had not a federal law been enacted many species of migratory game birds would be extinct today.

"Since the federal government has been given jurisdiction over these birds they have increased wonderfully. But in order that seasons, bag limits and other regulations may be made judiciously and the birds given effective protection, the federal government must learn all possible as to their journeyings back and forth across the country. The banding of migratory waterfowl has already done much to trace the courses our ducks take when traveling in search of food or suitable climates. Each year that numbers of ducks are banded more will be added to the knowledge of man, and more adequate will be the protection he can offer his feathered friends.

"The work the United States bureau of biological survey is doing in investigating the habits of the migratory birds is of inestimable value to the gunners of the country; in order that the conservation work can be carried on in an intelligent manner."

Unhappily Married Men's Club Formed

Paris.—The little town of Firminy, near St. Etienne, has the distinction of being the first community to organize an "Unhappy Married Men's club."

The population of Firminy at the last census was 19,580, but when notices were posted in public places calling upon "every unhappily married man in town" to be present at a given place and a given date "in order to organize a club, nominate officers and arrange a banquet," nearly 200 men, ranging in age from twenty-five to seventy-five, responded.

The humorists of Paris aver that should a similar summons be made here the huge Velodrome would be too small to accommodate the crowd.

Gamekeeper Kills Old Wolf Who Stole Lunch

Lenox, Mass.—Richard M. Davis, gamekeeper at the New Marlboro Game association preserves in southern Berkshire, recently shot a gray timber wolf which had killed his largest goose for a dinner. Two dead mallard ducks were close by.

Mr. Davis estimates that the wolf was forty years old, as its teeth were worn down smooth with the jaws. The fur is in good condition. The wolf put up a stiff fight before making a final leap to escape over a nine-foot fence.

This is the first wolf killed in the Berkshires since 1902. It is believed to be one of a pair that Cortlandt Field Bishop saw in Sheffield last February and which later was seen by Ike Beck on Mount Washington.

Increase Army Outlay

Berne.—In the Swiss budget for 1924, which shows 256,000,000 francs receipts against 294,000,000 francs expenditure, military appropriations amount to 81,000,000 francs, being 4,000,000 francs in excess of 1923. The greater part of this sum is for the instruction of a number of recruits greatly in excess of the quota of previous years.

City in Ecuador Razed by Quake

Was Accessible Only by Mule Trail.

Washington, D. C.—"Tulcan, Ecuadorean city reported wiped out by an earthquake, lies in a region where the only rift in nature's lute seems to be seismic disturbances," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Tulcan had about 5,000 people. It lay 100 miles northeast of Quito, near the Colombian border, and was accessible only by a mule trail.

"One writer says the climate is so healthful that 'hens lay so persistently that medicine has to be given them to save their lives.'

Water, Rail and Bridle-Path.

"The mule ride is the last stretch of a waterway, rail, and bridle-path route which takes the visitor up South America's principal Pacific river, the Guayas, to Guayaquil, Ecuador's principal port, and thence to the country's capital, Quito, after two days' railroad travel.

"Quito is only 286 miles from Guayaquil, but the trains do not travel by night. That is the visitor's good fortune, for the route discloses the rugged beauty of the Andes and traverses regions which produce staples of American retail trade—Panama hats, quinine and cocoa.

"Though hidden far from the busy world, Tulcan was a thriving community, to which American exporters' representatives in Guayaquil sent agents, and its own people frequently joined the colorful crowds on the streets of Quito, a capital above the clouds.

Quito Cultured Capital.

"Quito resembles our own capital in that it is more residential and governmental than a business city. Ladies in smart motor cars shop at stores displaying the latest importations from New York, London and Paris. American Indians frequently come to Washington; but the Eucadorean Indians are far more plentiful in Quito's streets. They stroll about in orange ponchos, sailor-like cotton trousers, and broad-brimmed hats. Their native villages usually can be distinguished by the shape of their ponchos, the cut of their hair, or a turn of their headdress.

"There is no daylight saving problem in Quito. Day and night are 12 hours the year round. The climate is just as equable—it is always early spring in Quito—but there is a 10-degree difference between the sunny places of the direct equatorial rays, and the shade.

"Four hours toward the mountains will land one in a region of perpetual frost; in half a day one can descend to the deep and sultry valleys between the mighty chains of the Andes.

Where Chocolate Comes From.

"One Ecuadorean chocolate plantation produces 25,000 pounds of cocoa yearly for American and European confection makers. The cocoa beans are spread, for drying, over acres of bamboo mattings. Workmen scuffle through them with bare feet occasionally to make sure they dry. When the pods are first opened the beans and pulp are creamy white; they grow brown after exposure to air.

"Quito, from the slopes of the hills which surround it, presents a picture of dazzling white, relieved by the red roofs of its wooden houses.

"Although wood is its only available building material, Guayaquil's public buildings, churches and theater are noted for their architectural beauty. And because its buildings are wood it maintains what is reputed to be the largest fire department of any city of its size in the world. In times past it suffered from disastrous fires.

Make "Panama Hats."

"Sixty miles up-river, Guayaquil is the country's great distributing center. It has one manufacturing industry of great importance to the United States—that of Panama hat making. It exports more than a million dollars' worth of headgear annually. The raw material comes from smaller inland cities; the finished product gets its name from the canal through which it is shipped to this country.

"One other prospect of northern Ecuador which is not so pleasing is the snow-clad, ever active, volcanic Cotopaxi, with its ill-omened smoke halo. The crater is near Latacunga, where the legend survives that the great earthquake of 1698 was foretold by a priest. The Carmelite nuns of Latacunga, so the story goes, held to their faith in the prophecy for seven years during which they slept in tents in their gardens. Their faith was rewarded when the quake finally came, for their convent fell, but the tent-dwellers escaped."

Most headaches due to lack of internal cleanliness

WHEN you are constipated, poisons form in the accumulated food waste. These poisons, absorbed by the blood, are carried throughout the body. Headaches follow. Biliousness, sleepless nights, lack of energy, all result from constipation. Each of these takes away piecemeal something of your health and strength. In time, intestinal poisoning due to lack of internal cleanliness may cause the breakdown of some vital organ.

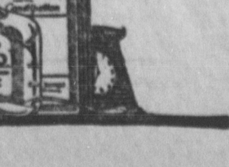
In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

More Important Than Soap and Water

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.



Health and Happiness Reward Internal Cleanliness

Physicians Favor Lubrication

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The second series of games of the bowling league will be closed on Feb. 4. A breathing spell will be taken before the opening of the third series. On Thursday evening, Feb. 7, the Tyrone Y. M. C. A. team will roll against the local team on the alleys here. The committee plans to make this another social event and have a supper served and a meeting for the discussion of bowling matters for the remainder of the season. The local team defeated the State College team by 24 pins on the local alleys Thursday of last week. A return match will be played shortly.

The Hi Y club will have their open session and tea on Sunday, Feb 3 Chief Olmstead, of the State College Y. M. C. A., and one of the college athletes, will speak to the boys. Three units have been organized, with leaders, for the various activities of the club; one will have charge of the supper arrangements and serving.

The Board of Directors had their regular monthly meeting last Friday evening and received the reports of the secretary and treasurer and discussed important matters relative to the "Y" work. A joint meeting of the directors and trustees will be held shortly.

Report on Near East Relief.

Miss Mary Hunter Linn, who as chairman in Centre County for Near East Relief has done so much for that worthy cause, filed this week a report on the work being done. Her report deals specifically with wonderful results achieved with orphanages in various sections, among these being Alexandripol, Armenia; Aleppo, Syria, and Palestine where thousands of children are being cared for. Regarding the pressing need for continued support, Miss Linn said:

"We must remember, however, that only with our money can these orphanages be kept open. Surely it would be more cruel to turn out these helpless children after they have had a time of comparative comfort and hope for the future than to have left them die in their first misery.

"February is Centre County's time for providing for her orphans. Let us see to it that none of the children we put in orphanages have to be turned out on account of our indifference. The orphanages are in protected zones."

Income Tax Man Coming.

March 1, 3, 4 and 5, a deputy collector of internal revenue will be at the Court House in Bellefonte, for the purpose of assisting taxpayers in preparing their income tax returns for the year 1923. If you desire assistance in making your return, call on him at the stated time. Returns, accompanied by remittance for at least one-fourth of the tax must reach the collector or his deputy on or before March 15. David W. Philips, collector.

GOOD THINGS WE ENJOY

This is the season when the garden is purple with the rich colors of the eggplant. Nicely cooked, this vegetable is most delicious.

Baked Stuffed Eggplant. — Cut eggplant into quarters, lengthwise, removing the pulp close to the skin. Force the pulp through a meat chopper and drain; there should be two and two-thirds cupfuls of the pulp. To the pulp in a saucepan add one and one-half cupfuls of ham stock, bring to the boiling point and boil twenty minutes. Add three-fourths of a cupful of coarse dried bread crumbs, one-fourth of a cupful of melted butter, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one egg, slightly beaten; mix well and fill the shells with this mixture, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake.

Green Tomato Relish.—Take two quarts of green tomatoes, four quarts of chopped cabbage, one-half dozen onions, two small red peppers, one bunch of celery, one-half ounce of celery seed, two tablespoonfuls of salt, one-half ounce of allspice and one-half ounce of mustard seed. Chop the vegetables very fine; add the other ingredients and cook twenty minutes, adding one-half ounce of tumeric at the last. Fill cans and seal.

Scalloped Macaroni With Onions.—Cook one cupful of macaroni broken into one-inch pieces in boiling salted water to cover. When the macaroni is soft and the pipes well rounded, drain. Peel twelve silver-skinned onions, prick them several times and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Put a layer of macaroni into a buttered baking dish, arrange over it half of the onions and sprinkle with a third of a cupful of grated cheese; pour over one-half cupful of rich white sauce, repeat and cover the top with buttered crumbs. Bake until thoroughly heated and the crumbs are brown.

The Vocal Selection.

A little girl of six years old was much interested in the preparation for her sister's marriage.

"Sister, I want to sing at your wedding," she said.

"No, dear, you can't sing."

"But I can and I want to," she pleaded.

"What would you sing?" her father asked her.

"'Heaven Look With Pity,' was her rejoinder, and her father hasn't got over it yet.—Boston Transcript.

OVER THE COUNTY

Dr. C. S. Musser, of Aaronsburg, who has been seriously ill, is reported as weaker.

'Squire Frank A. Carson, of Potters Mills, has installed a radio in his home, the first in that section.

Evangelistic services conducted at Woodward by Rev. C. B. Snyder, of Millheim, resulted in 25 conversions. The meetings closed last week.

Earl J. Grove, who had been employed on a dairy farm near Altoona, is now helping his brother, C. C. Grove, of near Tusseyville, prepare for the sale for next spring.

The Ford car of Clyde A. Smith, of Centre Hall, was put out of commission and two posts at the side of the Nittany mountain road were struck, one being broken, when the car skidded the other day as Mr. Smith was driving from the bricks to the oiled section.

George W. Sharer, one of Penn's valley's prosperous farmers who some time ago purchased from Clayton Musser, the Conley farm east of Centre Hall, bought about 18 acres additional land recently from Benjamin H. Emerick. The land is near his main farm buildings and had a small barn on it, which will be torn down and rebuilt as a shed. The consideration was $1,850.

Daniel A. Grove installed officers of Progress Grange, at Centre Hall, recently as follows; George W. Ralston, master; Rev. J. M. Kirkpatrick, lecturer; J. T. Potter, chaplain; Sarah Neff, secretary; Jacob Sharer, treasurer; Mrs. C. R. Neff, flora; Mrs. G. W. Ralston, ceres; Mrs. Richard Brooks, pomona; Mrs. Alice Durst, Curtis Reiber, Margaret Luse, stewards. There was a large attendance. Refreshments were served and special music on piano and violin by Mrs. Della Reiber, Miss Margaret Luse and Miss Lottie Keller, enlivened the occasion.

George E. Mensch has been appointed truant officer for Millheim.

Saturday is Groundhog Day and many are wondering what his prophecy shall be.

The first ice of the season was harvested last week. It was from 7 to 10 inches thick and of good quality.

New $1 bills have been in circulation and a supply reached Centre County last week. They sure are welcome guests.

Clymer McClenahan, of Centre Hall, became unconscious when he suffered an attack of acute indigestion, but has recovered again.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Musser, well-known residents of Millheim, observed their 40th wedding anniversary last Thursday. A turkey dinner was served.

In keeping with her custom followed through a number of years, Mrs. James W. Runkle, of Centre Hall, has just finished quilting a fine bed covering for the Loysville Orphans' Home, which will find its place on the bed of some child during cold winter nights. Mrs. Runkle is 73 years old and delights in doing deeds of kindness.

For a home to be in the same family continuously for more than one hundred years is very unusual, but Wm. C. Warntz, who last fall sold his farm along Pine creek in Haines Twp., and recently moved in with his son, Harry Warntz, who tenants the W. E. Boob farm, near Fiedler, owned and occupied for many years and sold to C. E. Arney. It was owned by the Warntz family for 109 years. In 1815 George Warntz bought the place from Jacob Lutz. After the death of George Warntz the farm was bought in 1876 by Daniel Warntz, and after his death was bought in 1881 by his son, William C. Warntz, who owned and occupied it for 42 years. The first Warntz owner was William's grandfather and the second William's father.

Beauty mingled with invention, founded on the observation of nature, is the mainspring of decorative design. If it is not beautiful, it has no right to exist; if not founded on observation of nature, it can hardly be either beautiful or inventive. It is apt to become merely strange and monstrous when it departs from nature.—William Morris.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Too many homes are filled, or good space used, for things that are both strange and monstrous; it is a question, even if we have passed the golden oak stage, the painted dustpans, and wood chopping bowls, whether we have improved or gone back. There are so few homes with restful spaces, walls with a picture or two and those worth having and keeping and daily enjoying. A landscape window or group of windows looking out on a beautiful scene, whether land or waterscape, is much more to be desired than anything one may hang on the walls. However, we may not all have these beautiful pictures of nature in our homes, so we feed our souls not with the hyacinths; but with substitutes.

In the fall and spring when the house is given the semi-yearly going over, is a good time to weed out many things that have been wished upon us or we have purchased and regretted.

How many closets are too full of clothes, never to be worn again, which might be passed on, made over and enjoyed by some one?

How many take the trouble to bind together the leaves of a good story taken from the magazines, to give to a sick friend who is not strong enough to hold a book or magazine? Such stories are always welcomed in hospitals. Scrap books for the children may be made from the various cover pages of magazines, many of them most beautiful in color and design. A few minutes now and then spent in looking over such treasures and taking a half day to get them ready will be time well spent. This is good work for the young people in the home, helps them to think of others, and with an older head to arrange and plan, they can do it as well as mother. Take a rainy day when the youngsters are teasing for something to do and make half a dozen scrap books.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

A most tasty and delicate dish may be prepared from calf's brains. Wash the brains and cook in simmering water to which a tablespoonful of vinegar has been added with salt and a slice each of onion and carrot to add flavor. Drain and chill. When cold cut into cubes and pour over the brains a half cupful of sweet cider or any unsweetened fruit juice; let stand one hour. Peel one-fourth of a pound of mushroom caps, slice and saute in butter. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour and when well-blended one cupful of thin cream and one-half cupful of whipped cream. Bring the cream, except the whipped cream, to the boiling point, add the brains and mushrooms, season well with cayenne and salt and add the whipped cream just before serving. This is a delicious dish to serve in cream puffs or timbale cases.

Escalloped Apples.—Cut a small loaf of bread into halves, remove the soft part and rub through the hands to crumb well, melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter and stir lightly with a fork. Cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with buttered crumbs and cover with two cupfuls of thinly-sliced apples; sprinkle with sugar, nutmeg, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and the grated rind of half a lemon; repeat, cover with the remaining crumbs and bake forty minutes or until the apples are well done. Serve with sugar and cream.

Baked Haddock With Oyster Stuffing.—Remove skin, head and tail from a four-pound haddock. Bone and keep the fillets in shape. Sprinkle with salt and brush with lemon juice. Lay a fillet in a dripping pan, cover with oysters dipped into seasoned cracker crumbs, cover the oysters with another fillet, brush with egg, cover with buttered crumbs, and bake fifty minutes or until the fish is well cooked. Serve with hollandaise sauce. Any other meaty fish may be used in place of haddock.

GRANDFATHER TURKEY

"At this time of the year," said Grandfather Turkey, "I like to talk to all the trukeys in the barnyard."

"Gobble, gobble, gobble," said the other turkeys. "Do talk to us, Grandfather Turkey."

"Yes, talk to us," said Teddy Turkey. "Tell us anything at all. We're well fed and we feel like a little rest.

"We don't feel like wandering or adventuring."

"No," said Grandfather Turkey, "of course not."

"Why do you say 'Of course not'?" asked Teddy Turkey.

"Ah, you are but a young turkey. You do not understand," said Grandfather Turkey.

"Won't you explain it to me?" asked Teddy Turkey.

Now Grandfather Turkey was much pleased when Teddy Turkey asked to have Grandfather Turkey explain his speech. There was nothing Grandfather Turkey enjoyed more than explaining and talking and strutting and gobbling.

"Yes, I will explain many things," said Grandfather Turkey, "and I will do so as soon as you all gather about me."

So all the turkeys gathered about Grandfather Turkey and he began to tell them of many things.

"First I have a little news of the barnyard to tell," said Grandfather Turkey. "Jackie, the horse, is devoted to the little girl who is the daughter of the farmer.

"Whenever Jackie hears her footsteps he begins to neigh. Yes, he

"You Do Not Understand," Said Grandfather Turkey.

"Then he kisses her when she comes to see him and she kisses him, too.

"Oh, they are the best of friends, and it is very sweet the way Jackie neighs when he hears her in the distance.

"Then there is one other thing I wish to say before I begin to tell some Turkey news.

"That is that horseradish is an herb and people grate it and then put vinegar on it and eat it.

"I don't know why it is called horseradish, Turkey children, but I do know that horses don't eat it. I have heard that one of the reasons it has been called horseradish is because it is so strong an herb and horses are supposed to be so strong.

"I heard one of the Turkey children saying the other day that it must be a radish vegetable for a horse!

"It is in the spring when people eat it mostly. How did you happen to hear of it?"

And Grandfather Turkey spoke to the Turkey child whom he had heard speak of horseradish a little time before.

"I heard the farmer's daughter telling another little girl how much she liked it and then I wondered if it could be that she enjoyed hay and oats and other food for horses!"

"Gobble, gobble, gobble," laughed Grandfather Turkey.

"Well, now I must tell you Turkey truths.

"The reason you do not want to wander away and adventure forth these days is because you are being so well fed for either Thanksgiving day or Christmas day.

"Then you will be eaten without a doubt, or at least, very likely.

"But to make up for that kind of an ending you are given so much food before that time to fatten you up (which is very pleasant) you do not care to go away.

"It would be very foolish if you did!

"I must tell you a little Turkey history, too.

"Our ancestors, or those turkeys who came much before us, were from Europe, then they went to Mexico, and then they became domestic turkeys and now are thoroughly American.

"But our wild turkeys of this country are not our nearest relatives and they're not the ones from whom we are descended.

"Oh, we have our own history. Let no one think as they see us gobbling and strutting in the barnyard that we have no history.

"For we have—history and geography, too—for our ancestors have traveled and it is interesting to know that, too.

"Ah yes, gobble, gobble, those of our family who finally end up on a platter have had a history back of them at any rate!"

In the barnyard was story telling.

"When She Was a Bride."

quite often there One of the hens would tell the little chicks stories of other chicks and of adventures they had had and of good and bad deeds they had performed.

Mother Turkey would tell her children how they should act and would explain to them how miserable, for example, little turkeys had been who had disobeyed their mothers and had let their feet get wet during the first weeks of their lives.

Red Top the Rooster would boast of the days when he had been a young rooster and tell of how everyone had paid attention to him and had listened, amazed and wonder-struck, at his crowing.

The pigs would grunt and squeal and tell of famous pigs in the family—pigs who had been splendidly greedy and wonderful eaters!

There would be adventure stories to tell of animals who had wandered away from the barnyard and what had happened to them, of the narrow escapes they had had and oh—of the marvelous stories they could tell when they were back, safe and sound, in the barnyard.

There were stories to tell which would make the animals laugh and grin and at times the barnyard was filled with the laughter of the barnyard animals—such funny laughter as it is too.

Maybe you have heard it at times?

Of course, too, at times the animals did all sorts of things which would never be forgotten and later on these actions would be described to even younger chicks and turkeys and pigs and ducks.

Mrs. White Hen told of the days when she was a bride and how everyone admired her wedding feathers and said that they were just suitable, for everyone really should have white for a wedding.

And she hadn't put her wedding feathers away and hadn't allowed them to become yellow with age so that they'd fall apart and be useless except as a curiosity.

No, she had made good use of her white feathers and had worn them right along.

The parrot in the enormous cage on the back porch squeaked and screamed and yelled at times with merriment for he had lots to say for himself and lots to remember.

The parrot had, at one time, helped to collect money for a hospital. The money had been needed badly and the parrot had sat up on a balcony and had shrieked:

"We need money. The doctors need money for the hospital. Help the doctors. Help the doctors and the hospital with your money."

Everyone had looked up and had seen that the parrot was making all these cries and it was the parrot who was so successful in raising the funds that were needed. That was a favorite story in the barnyard, and the parrot was very proud of that too.

Then the parrot had at one time escaped from the hospital—he had thought it would be rather fun to go adventuring. And one day he got away and flew up to the branch of a nearby tree, but all he did when there was to call for his doctor friends and they opened his cage door so that he was able to go back to safety and his own real home.

And later on he had been given to the farmer who owned this barnyard.

Yes, the parrot was a splendid parrot to have around, so many adventures had he had!

So story telling and wonderful deeds had their part in the life of the barnyard.

"It Was the Parrot."

And this life in the barnyard went along so that every day it seemed that the animals were even happier than the day before.

The farmer fed them well, his children were always good to them.

Dash, the dog, was like a private watchman for them, and altogether the barnyard was as jolly and pleasant a place as ever a group of barnyard animals could have.

And when the barnyard animals heard that not only had they their stories to tell and to act but that stories about them were being told all about, the pigs grunted, the rooster crowed, the hens cackled, the ducks quacked, and all the others chattered in their own peculiar way and said:

"Well, we're glad people know of us! After all we're a pretty fine set of animals!"

Port Matilda

We have had some very cold weather. Last Monday and Tuesday it was so cold that the farmers who market their produce in Philipsburg every Tuesday did not go until Wednesday. It was much warmer Thursday night and we had about 4 inches of snow for the first this winter that we could do any sledding. It was the first time we heard the sleigh bells.

We have not forgotten nor dropped the forces after the concrete road. Its just a little quiet now, waiting to get a date in Harrisburg with Mr. Wright. Last week H. B. Scott was away from home or perhaps this matter would have been settled.

W. E. Williams was in Tyrone last Friday and attended a directors' meeting of the Farmers and Merchants bank.

W. E. Williams and P. B. Woodring are the only persons that have any ice put up this winter. They are after it with all forces.

Our new community bank is doing a very nice business—nearly every day a new customer. We surely do appreciate the bank in our town. We don't see now how we got along so longwithout it. The brick yard pay is every two weeks and of pretty good size. Especially then the employes, merchants and others appreciate a place like this which makes it unnecessary to go to Tyrone, Bellefonte, Philipsburg or State College, when we get a little cash.

H. M. Crain and Charles E. Woodring drove to Tyrone on Tuesday evening by request of the American Legion. The soldier boys had a banquet and smoker, an enjoyable evening together.

Mrs. P. B. Woodring is visiting a lady friend in Johnstown for a week or ten days.

Mrs. H. M. Crain was in Tyrone on Tuesday on a shopping tour.

The Lodge of the Modern Woodmen held their annual banquet in the K. G. E. hall on Saturday evening. It was a merry social affair. This is one time the ladies get to go along.

Our schools are getting along very well this winter. We have a pretty fine lot of teachers in the 8 schools in Worth Twp. as follows: J. D. Beck, principal and High School teacher; Miss Bertha Artz, grammar grade; Mrs. J. D. Beck, intermediate grade; Miss Stella Barry, primary; Harold Crain, Chaney school; LeRoy Morrison, Sunnyside; Miss Viola Williams, Laurel Run; Jessie Gray, Shady Dell. The teachers would appreciate a visit to their schools by parents of the pupils and by some of the directors.

Howard

On Thursday, Jan. 24th, 1924, Mr. Ira E. Packer and Miss Mahalda L. Holt, who live near Howard, were united in marriage at the Evangelical parsonage by their pastor, Rev. F. F. Mayer.

O. M. Lucas, who conducts a confectionery store here, filled his ice house last week with 8 and 10 inch ice.

John H. Mokle, of Lehighton, was in town several days of this week greeting his old friends with a smile.

J. Will Mayes is having Robert Badger, of Mifflinburg, repaint his Stevens car. Mr. Badger is noted for turning out good work as he is an expert.

Leonard Confer and J. Will Mayes attended the State Product show which was held at Harrisburg last week. They took with them a sample of guernsey milk and received fourth prize.

Edward Green, Walter Yearick, A. D Gledhill and Harold Pletcher are all busy this week putting up ice for their summer supply.

Roland Mann, of this place, who has been ill for the past few months is in a very critical condition at this writing.

I. B. Pletcher left here Sunday for Turtle Creek to accompany his wife and son Gifford home.

Hublersburg.

George Keis, of Tylersville, spent a day last week with his wife at B. W. Heckman's home.

Fred Hayes and Russell Heckman returned from Harrisburg last Thursday evening.

B. W. Whitman, who is employed in Lock Haven, spent the week-end with his wife and family.

Mrs. J. D. Miller visited in Bellefonte one day last week,

Little Miss Mary McCloskey spent the week-end with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Yarnell.

Hogan Markle is spending sometime with relatives and friends at Altoona.

Sell Western Horses.

A carload of western horses arrived in Centre Hall this week to be sold at auction. It is the first carload of horses to be sold there in a long time and recalls the period not so many years ago before the great popularity of autos and tractors, when horse sales were frequently held.

Boalsburg.

Mrs. E. R. Tussey and son visited at Tyrone and Altoona from Friday until Monday.

Dr. R. P. Gerhart and family spent Tuesday at the Charles Segner home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher, of Bellefonte, and daughter, Mrs. David Davidson, of Philadelphia, spent part of last week with relatives here.

Mrs. Luther Zerby, of State College, was a recent visitor at her home here.

Mrs. John Jacobs is visiting at Altoona.

Mrs. Burkholder, of Lewistown, is spending some time at the Frank McFarlane home.

The Men's Bible Class of the Lutheran Sunday school entertained the members of the class and their families at a banquet last Thursday evening.

(From Last Week.)

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Charles and son spent Saturday at Philipsburg.

Harold Fisher, of Sunbury, visited at his home here from Saturday until Tuesday.

Dr. R. P. Gerhart and family, of Linden Hall, spent Saturday at the George Mothersbaugh home.

Mrs. Wm. Stover visited at Altoona from Sunday until Tuesday.

Mrs. W. H. Stuart and mother, Mrs. Eliza Leech, accompanied Mrs. L. D. Graham and children to Washington, D. C., on Friday. Mrs. Graham and children started to Florida on Sunday and the other ladies returned to their homes.

Mrs. J. F. Kimport spent part of last week with her father at Rock Springs.

Walter Lempky, of Washington, D. C., and Edward Rankin, of Philadelphia, were over Sunday visitors with the latter's sister, Mrs. Frank McFarlane.

Miss Agnes Bayne is spending several days at Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Frank McFarlane attended the funeral of Mrs. John Rankin, of Philadelphia, at Bellefonte on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gregg, of Altoona, were recent visitors at the Rowe home.

Oak Hall.

Mrs. Nannie Gilliland was a guest with Misses Olive Mitchell and Mary Struble, at Bellefonte, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Kline, of Axe Mann, spent Wednesday at the L. K. Dale home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Lowder and family, and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Lowder attended the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Rothrock, at Reedsville, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Annie Sunday, of Tadpole, is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Waldo Homan.

The missionary society of the Lemont Presbyterian church will hold a social at the R. C. Lowder home on Friday evening, Feb. 1.

Mrs. George F. Brown, one of Clarence's most highly esteemed residents, was taken to the Bellefonte hospital on last Saturday evening. She is reported as getting along nicely. Mrs. Brown conducts one of the popular stores at Clarence and her husband is justice of the peace there. When he returned home on Saturday evening from Laquin, Bradford County, where he is employed by the Central Penna. Lumber Co as a scaler, he found Mrs. Brown very ill. He immediately had her removed to the hospital where her condition was considered serious. Having been taken in time, her case responded to medical treatment and it is thought now that she will be able to return home within an other week.

POPE HITS MODERN STYLES

Stringent Rules for Women Who Seek Audience at Vatican.

As a result of the recent sensational incident when 150 women, forming a part of a deputation to the pope, were turned back from the Vatican because their dresses were low at the neck and had short sleeves, the papal major domo has issued a new set of regulations for dress when being received by the pope at the Vatican in Rome, Italy.

Women must wear dresses covering the arms to the wrist and the neck to the chin, say the regulations. The dresses must be made of thick material and not transparent, and be long enough to reach down to the ankles of the wearer. Dresses giving undue prominence to the figure are discouraged.

Gloves must not be worn, and only wedding or engagement rings may adorn the fingers of intending visitors to the Vatican, who are now submitted to three examinations, viz., first at the door, second at St. Damasco courtyard, and if they pass these posts, their invitation card is crossed with a blue mark. The third examination is made in the papal antechamber, where successful candidates receive a red cross on their cards.

Makeup of any description is strictly forbidden. Hair dye is tolerated, provided it is not of the conspicuous peroxide tint.

Milton S. Adams Dead.

Milton S. Adams died suddenly on Tuesday morning while eating his breakfast in his home in the rear of the Trinity Methodist church in Philipsburg. "Mick" as he was familiarly known, became ill on Sunday, but did not seem to be serious. He contracted a cold, but was able to be about and was in the church on Sunday morning, but did not feel able to perform his duties as sexton and returned to his home. Deceased was a native of Clearfield County, born at Stoneville on August 6, 1847. He served during the early part of his life in the Raftsman Journal printing office in Clearfield when the paper was in charge of Bucher Swoope. After the Civil war he located near Philipsburg and was postmaster at Chester Hill for a number of years. For 12 years he had served faithfully as sexton of the Trinity Methodist church. He is survived by the following half-brothers and half-sisters: Mrs. David Ellis, Juniata; Mrs. Andrew Millward, Cleveland; Mrs. Nell Merrill, Sandy Ridge; Charles, Mrs. L. E. Bailey, Oscar J., Miss Louise and Mrs. Harry Clarkson, all of Philipsburg, and Theodore S., of Bell Vernon.

Jacob Lyon Dead

Jacob Lyon, who for many years was associated with his brother, the late William A. Lyon, in conducting a meat market on Allegheny street where Fiske Shearer is now located, passed away on Sunday evening after an illness of several years caused by nervous exhaustion. The deceased was a native of Danville, a son of Mr. and Moyer Lyon, and was about 69 years old. The greater part of his life, however, was spent in this section where he was well known and held in high esteem. He had resided with his brother and family on High street until that home was broken up a few years ago upon the passing away of the brother. Since then he had resided on Logan street, at the home of Mrs. Tillie Woods. He never married. Surviving are the following brothers and sisters: Mrs James Scarlet, Mrs. Ella Shultz, Miss Carolyn Lyon, Charles, of Danville, and Henry, in the South. Robert Lyon, of Buffalo, his devoted nephew, came to Bellefonte on Monday and accompanied the body to Danville on Tuesday for burial in the Lyon family plot.

Mrs. Mary M. Stover Dead.

Mrs Mary Magdelene Stover, a native of Ferguson Township, died at her home in Altoona on last Friday evening after an illness of seventeen days, following a stroke. Deceased was born on May 31, 1839, near Pine Grove Mills, a daughter of William and Catherine Hess Musser. She was united in marriage on Feb. 5th, 1862, to Frank B. Stover, of Rock Springs. For many years the couple resided in Bellefonte where Mr. Stover was engaged in business. In 1904, the family moved to Altoona, where Mr. Stover passed away in 1913. Surviving are two sons and two daughters: Alvin H., of Norristown; Lulu C., at home, and Mrs. E. H. Stover, and Samuel H., of Altoona. Mrs. Stover was a lifelong member of the Lutheran church and a devoted Christian. Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon and burial made in Rose Hill cemetery.

Mrs. D. B. Shuey Dead.

Mrs. D. Benner Shuey, a native of Benner Township, died at her home in Apollo, Pa., on last Thursday. Deceased was a daughter of William and Anna Saxion, her maiden name being Lulu Saxion, and was [illegible] 29 years, 3 months and 17 days old. Death was caused by diabetes. She was seriously ill for several weeks. Surviving are her husband two children, Daniel and Donald, at home; her parents, one brother, Edward, of Apollo, and one sister, Verna, at home. The body was brought to Bellefonte on Friday and funeral services were held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Shuey, of Pleasant Gap, on Saturday morning. Burial was made in Pine Hall cemetery.

Dr. C. S. Musser Dead.

Dr. C. S. Musser, one of the best known physicians of Penn's valley, died at his home in Aaronsburg on Tuesday morning between 9 and 10 o'clock, after a brief illness from pneumonia. The deceased was a son of Dr. Philip T. and Mary J. Musser, born at Millheim on Nov. 19, 1856. He never married and is survived by one brother, Harvey, an attorney in Akron, O., but who came east and was with his brother during the illness, and one sister, Ella, wife of Rev. A. J. Irey, minister of the Baptist church at Danville. Funeral services will be held on this Thursday afternoon and burial made at Aaronsburg in the family plot.

Mrs. Jane Brotherton Dead.

Mrs. Jane Brotherton, a native of Centre County, died at the home of a son-in-law, William Shuey, in Pittsburgh, on Sunday morning. Deceased was born on August 25, 1838, one of a family of fifteen children of William and Mary Norris, of whom two survive: Daniel B. Norris and Mrs. W. B. Ray of Juniata.

Mrs. George C. Davison Dead.

Mrs. Westanna Davison, widow of George C. Davidson, died on Monday at her home in Tyrone. Deceased was born at Graysville, a daughter of Jacob W. and Rebecca Burley Jones. She was past 78 years of age.

FIRST OF TEXAS RANGERS

Mounted Police of Canada the Only Other Similar Body of Men in America.

The mounted police of Canada is the only other similar organization to the Texas Rangers on this continent. The service of the rangers is more effective than that of the regular soldiers, for they pay less consideration to the possibilities of international complications.

"Killed in resisting arrest" is a very frequent report of a ranger, and it is always considered a satisfactory explanation of the death of an outlaw or criminal attempting to evade arrest.

The original rangers came into existence in the early days of the state, along about 1840, in the neighborhood of San Antonio. To affiliate with this band it was absolutely necessary for a man to posssess courage, to be a splendid rider and an unerring shot, and to have a fleet horse worth at least $100. For this he was remunerated by the state with the sum of $1 a day.

The ranger was usually clothed in buckskin and wore a broad-brimmed hat. For his accoutrement three or four revolvers and as many bowie knives were thrust through his belt and a short rifle was thrown across his arm. Years of fierce border warfare had inured them to every hardship and and had prepared them for every eventuality.—Detroit News.

Property Taxes in Greece.

Greece has imposed a new property tax on immovable and movable property. On March 3 the council of ministers at Athens approved the project of the minister of finance for its imposition. Property to the value of 50,000 drachmas is exempted from the tax, while on large amounts a graduated tax is imposed, varying from 50,000 to 100,000 drachmas to 20 per cent on estates exceeding 25,000,000 drachmas. (The drachma exchange rate is about $0.010861.)

—Tell the boys at the office the wife and I are mighty grateful just the same.

Luckily, I took out an ÆTNA DISABILITY POLICY shortly before I fell downstairs and broke my arm. That brings me $50 a week once a month, and will as long as I'm totally out of the running, besides paying the surgeon. After that, $25 a week until I'm fit to tackle the job again.

You know how we all chipped in on a little collection for Del Morgan when he cut himself on that ink scratcher, got blood poison, and was laid up so long? While Del appreciated it, he was pretty embarrassed. That taught me my lesson. I telephoned the ÆTNA and told 'em I wanted to

There Are Still Some People Who Keep Their Money at Home.

The news papers recently told of a robbery in which the robbers narrowly missed the hiding place of thousands of dollars, that the owner had concealed in his house. The next day he took it to a bank.

What if they had found it?

How foolish to take such risks when a good bank is near.

Will Use Rocket to Explore Air

Professor, Who Proposed Trip to Moon, Now Will Test Atmosphere.

Cincinnati.—Prof. R. H. Goddard of Clark university, whose attempt to build a rocket that would make a trip to the moon attracted wide attention several years ago, is still working on plans for a high altitude rocket for the purpose of making scientific records of air conditions 50 miles above the earth, he told physicists attending the science convention here.

Both the weather bureau and the Smithsonian institution at Washington are said to be interested in Professor Goddard's plan, which is now nearing completion. He said he had only one more step to make before he could prepare a model for flight.

Professor Goddard proposed to shoot a rocket into the air at least fifty miles—perhaps more. It will be equipped with very delicate apparatus, which will open and close automatically when the rocket reaches a certain altitude. The closing of the apparatus will lock into a chamber a quantity of the air at that height, and the rocket, in falling to earth, will carry with it the first sample of air man has ever brought down from such a great height in space.

May Find Frozen Nitrogen.

Professor Goddard will examine this specimen in his laboratory and expects to be enabled to supply an answer for the first time in history as to the constitution of the air at such a distance.

According to Professor Goddard's theory, frozen nitrogen may be found at a height of 50 miles from the earth. That there is something there which is not common at points close to the earth is believed to be evidenced by the fact that the aurora borealis and meteorites appear at this height.

In addition to the air trap, Professor Goddard's rocket will carry instruments for measuring pressure, electrical effects and the radiation which occurs at such altitudes, and which is said to be much more powerful even than X-rays. The rocket will also carry a machine for taking the temperature at certain altitudes and keeping a record of the changes.

The rocket will be fired from the earth at a speed of six miles a second or more. This speed, which is six times faster than the best speed ever attained by a cannon ball, it is estimated would enable the rocket to free itself from the attraction of the earth and keep on traveling for the desired distance.

Professor Goddard intends to propel the rocket with liquid oxygen, which gets energy from evaporation. The rocket will be highly polished and marked so that the experimenters can keep it under observation long enough to calculate its range and course, and to estimate its landing place.

What science is doing to minimize loss from earthquakes was told by Dr. T. A. Jagger, Jr., who lived on the crater of a volcano at Hawaii for eight years and recently was sent to Tokyo by the Department of Agriculture to study the causes and effects of the Japanese earthquake.

According to Doctor Jagger, much of the terrible loss of life in Japan could have been avoided had the proper precautions against earthquakes been taken. He showed photographic slides of the damage done in Japanese cities, illustrating that most of the properly built houses withstood the shock.

The care with which a building had been put up, and not the material with which it was constructed, was chiefly responsible for its ability to remain standing during the disaster, said Doctor Jagger.

Congested population is one of the big factors in causing heavy loss of life in earthquakes, he said. The 11 great disasters of this sort in the last 21 years have been progressively more serious because of greater population in the affected areas.

Doctor Jagger, who is in the government service, urged that more geological observatories be established in various parts of the United States to prepare for earthquake disasters. He said that New York, Philadelphia, Washington and other cities on the Atlantic seaboard were not immune from earthquakes by any means. He pointed out that New York had had earthquakes in the Eighteenth century, and it and other Eastern cities should be warned by the precedent of Charleston. He said earthquakes might return to the Pacific coast, and might even shake cities in the Mississippi valley.

Warns of Dense Population.

According to Doctor Jagger, conditions in America are especially bad in case earthquakes should come, because of the density of population in certain big cities, and because we have more volcanoes than any other country.

Organized city planning was urged by Doctor Jagger as the best means of preparing for the danger. He said all our cities should provide emergency means for turning off electricity and gas without delay, and for getting immediate police and fire aid, so that 100 fires could be fought at once. The streets should be wide, he said, and parks numerous, so they could be used as places of refuge.

He advocated the continuance of experiments to perfect earthquake-proof buildings with special braces and special foundations. He also suggested compulsory earthquake insurance and other measures.

Experiments with the mercury vapor boiler recently tried out at Hartford, Conn., have been very successful, according to Ernest L. Robinson of the turbine department of the General Electric company. He said this experimental unit "appears to have borne out all the things expected of the invention, both as to increased efficiency and as to cheaper power." There was no question, he said, but that "theoretically the mercury engine is the thing."

Mr. Robinson said he was not prepared to insist on the present utility of the new engine until the experimental one had been operated long enough to test out the theories on which it was built.

Ante-Columbian Chorus Girls.

Dr. J. Walter Fewkes of the bureau of American ethnology at Washington, in an illustrated lecture on pottery found in the Mimbres valley in New Mexico, declared that this region had been inhabited by a highly civilized race of Indians long before Columbus discovered America. According to Doctor Fewkes' interpretation of the designs on this pottery, pictures of which he threw on a screen, various American institutions of the present day—such as poker, dice and chorus girls—originated with the Indians of the Mimbres valley, or at least were known to them before Columbus imported European customs into America.

Doctor Fewkes said the Indians whose pottery he had found had lived in complete isolation in their part of New Mexico, and that their mastery of artistic design was remarkable in an untutored race. Paintings on some of the pottery showed figures of three men, with bows stacked up like poker chips, and with black and white squares like dice in front of them. According to Doctor Fewkes, the Indians were gambling.

Other pieces of pottery showed what looked like figures of chorus girls, bigds, grasshoppers, turkeys, dancing figures, animals and fish and several others had geometrical designs.

The prediction that designs like those on the Indian pottery might soon be seen in the Fifth avenue shop windows was made by Doctor Fewkes. It was thought the Indian designs might rival those of Tut-Ankh-Amen.

"As soon as designers saw these remarkable patterns," Doctor Fewkes said, "they became eager to reproduce them for the decoration of fabrics, and I believe that before long we will see them in shop windows."

Has New Theory.

According to Doctor Fewkes, the pottery showed that the Indians had a theology as well as an art that anticipated modern life. Several of the paintings on the pottery showed that they believed in a Virgin birth, and that this belief included a Virgin who had born twins, which had become the gods of war of this Indian tribe.

A new theory of the ultimate unit of electricity has been put forward by Prof. A. P. Mathews of the University of Cincinnati. Scientists generally believe that protons and electrons are the primordial elements of the universe, and that they are the positive and negative charges of electricity, but Professor Mathews says the etherion is the ultimate unit of both electricity and light.

Professor Mathews pictures the etherion as a particle of matter before it becomes an electron, rejecting the prevailing theory that light consists of ether waves. He says that the ether consists of etherions, minute spheres that revolve at tremendous speed with a velocity of 186,000 miles a second, and that when an etherion gains energy of rotation it becomes a proton, or positive electrical charge, and that a neighboring etherion, losing the same energy, becomes an electron or negative charge. According to Professor Mathews, light is the basis of all matter, as the etherions are nothing but waves of light too small for transmission, and moving around and around in one place.

Winnipeg Labor Temple Denounced

This is the Ukrainian Labor temple at Winnipeg, Manitoba, in which it is claimed a Communist school is conducted and more than 250 pupils instructed daily in the principles advocated by Lenin and Trotzky. A judge of the supreme court of Ontario recently charged that the building is a menace to freedom on the continent of North America and that from it bolshevistic doctrine is spread all over the United States and Canada.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

PLACE BLAME FOR CRIME IN NATION

In order to support the claims of the American Legion that a certain element of the alien population is largely responsible for crime in the nation, a definite survey of persons and courts has been undertaken by Garland W. Powell, director of the National Americanism commission of the Legion.

The Legion favors total exclusion of all immigrants for a period of five years, in order to assimilate those aliens now within the boundaries of America, and will present the determinations as regards the crime by aliens, in order to substantiate the allegations that such immigration is deleterious to national ideals.

Similar information has never before been available, but Mr. Powell hopes to present it in such a way as to completely bear out claims of the Legion. The immigration question will be presented to national legislators for consideration at this term of congress.

In a letter sent to the chairman of Americanism commissions in each of the Legion departments, definite information is sought. One of the questionnaires prepared by the Americanism commission deals with courts, district attorneys and the activities of their offices. In this, Mr. Powell requests exact information as to cases pending against aliens for violation of narcotic and prohibition laws, for murder, for robbery, and other crimes, as compared with American citizens held on the same charge.

Another portion of the questionnaire deals entirely with prison and penal institutions. This requests information as to how many aliens are serving sentences of six months or more for murder, robbery, violation of prohibition and narcotic laws, and other crimes, as compared with the Americans incarcerated for the same crimes.

Importance of such a census of prisons and courts has been impressed on the Americanism commission of each department, and the information received is expected by Mr. Powell to be of weight in consideration of immigration restriction, in line with policies of the veterans' organization.

Woman Leads Post to High Standing

Under guidance of a woman, a post of the American Legion in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, has grown to be one of the most effective and powerful units of the organization in the South. Miss Alice Gray, former post commander, now representing the state as member of the national executive committee, was this leader, and Legion officials are agreed that her efforts are greatly responsible for success of this post.

The first care of the Clyde Bolling post, which Miss Gray headed, was relief of the disabled, and after that came service to the community. Many forward looking steps were outlined and put into effect by the post during the term which Miss Gray headed the post, and its achievements, particularly in instilling into the citizenship a deeper sentiment for patriotism, have won it a place of respect from the entire community. Display of the flag was one of the leader's hobbies, and perhaps no city in the South has more general observance of patriotic customs than Winston-Salem.

To Have Memorial Park

An old, unused cemetery near Van Wert, O., will soon be converted into a memorial park for the veterans of all wars, through action taken by a local post of the American Legion. The Legion men secured permission of the county commissioners to use the burial ground for this purpose, and will clean it up and install uniform headstones for those markers now fallen. None of the bodies now interred there are to be removed. A memorial building is planned by the Legion men, which is expected to house records and relics of the nation's wars.

To Teach Aliens

Recreation classes to teach aliens the value of play as well as study have been established by the Monroe County, N. Y., council of the American Legion as a part of the Americanism work of the veterans' organization. In these classes adult aliens seeking naturalization will learn the value of physical development, fair play, aggressiveness and co-operation as expressed in the games taught. Gymnasiums in local schools have been donated and volunteer physical workers are serving as instructors without recompense.

DUFFY TO AID OF EX-SERVICE MEN

It was through the efforts of Francis Ryan Duffy, national vice-commander of the American Legion, that the veterans' organization began to learn much of the condition of mental abnormality of many ex-service men in penal institutions of the nation, which had led to preparations for an extensive survey of such prisoners, with a view to proper care and treatment of such unfortunates.

The attention of Gov. John J. Blaine of Wisconsin was called to the fact that many ex-service men were imprisoned in the penitentiaries of his state, when they should rightfully be receiving treatment in mental institutions, not incarcerated for crimes their condition of mind had led them to commit.

Duffy was department commander of the American Legion when the state executive began his survey, which determined that 60 per cent of the ex-service men held as prisoners were mentally abnormal and that 20 per cent of these were sufferers from disabilities traceable to war service. The Legion man interested himself in the project, and through the aid of Governor Blaine and other state officials carried on a strong fight for the direction of these men to proper institutions, which course for the most part has been highly successful. This survey caused the adoption of a resolution by the national executive committee of the Legion directing its officials to begin a survey of all federal prisons.

Duffy was born in Fond du Lac, Wis., June 23, 1888, and that city is still his home. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and is a practicing attorney-at-law in his home city, serving as commissioner of the Circuit court.

He was commissioned in the Officers' Reserve corps in February 1917, and was assigned to the motor transport section. He was the first professional or business man to leave Fond du Lac for service at the outbreak of war. While in service he was assistant motor transportation officer in base section 1, A. E. F., and was promoted to the rank of major in October, 1918. At one time he was on special duty in the advance section between Chateau-Thierry and Fismes, in connection with the motor transport corps. He left the service in May, 1919.

Francis Ryan Duffy.

The new vice-commander of the Legion served as a member of the state executive committee in 1921 and 1922. On August 26, 1922, he was elected department commander to succeed Edward J. Barrett who was named national vice-commander in 1922. The post of department commander in Wisconsin carried with it membership in the national executive committee, and it was there that Mr. Duffy's work for the men in prison was first heard. Following in Barrett's footsteps, the Fond du Lac man passed through the post of department commander, to be elected to the national office at San Francisco.

Hope to Aid Indians

The Indian ex-service men are proving difficult to handle, according to recent reports furnished American Legion officials in South Dakota and other western states, by investigators of the veterans' bureau. Many of these men were wounded, but when they return to the reservations nothing is ever heard of claims for hospitalization, compensation, or treatment. Recently Legion officials and representatives of the veterans' bureau inspected reservations in the West and found that a majority of the Indians who served in the World war are compensable, but many are not now receiving government aid. One report indicates that out of one hundred and fifty examined, practically one-third were afflicted with trachoma, a contagious disease of the eye. Legion officials in such states expect to extend their relief work to aid these men.

Purchase Burial Plots

Four plots of ground in one of the city cemeteries have been purchased by Argonne post No. 20 of the American Legion, to be used as a burying ground for Legionnaires without family or whose families are not in a position to purchase a plot. The post also decided to procure from the government headstones which are furnished free of cost to former service men.

NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN MOTHERS

Worn Out Caring for Children and Housework—See how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"I was in a very nervous and run-down condition while nursing my baby, and hearing some talk of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began taking it. From the second bottle I noticed a big improvement, and I am still taking it. I am not a bit nervous now, and feel like a different person. It is a great medicine for any one in a nervous, run-down condition and I would be glad to give any one advice about taking it. I think there is no better medicine and give you permission to publish this letter."—Mrs. Anna Smith, 541 W. Norwood Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

The important thing about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is that it does help women suffering from the ailments common to their sex.

If you are nervous and run-down and have pains in your lower parts and in your back, remember that the Vegetable Compound has relieved other women having the same symptoms. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Her stomach was so bad that she could not retain food. She went down in flesh until she was merely skin and bones. I had tried many doctors and medicines but still she grew worse. At last a neighbor who had relied upon Dr. Pierce's medicines for years, told me about Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and before she had taken all of the first bottle she began to improve. By the time she had the third bottle taken her cough had entirely stopped. She gained in flesh and weighed twenty-nine pounds more than before she took the 'Discovery.'"—Edw. Pinson.

HOUSE OF HAPPINESS

By AGNES G. BROGAN

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

I CAME upon her as I walked the woodland way. During past visits to the country town Judith had often walked this way with me. I met her while I visited one summer with my sister. It was the summer of the war, and Judith was very lonely for the lover who rushed to his country's aid.

That her lover had returned from the war I learned, and that Judith's aunt had died meanwhile. So, now, I chose the woodland path, because I hoped that Judith might be walking that sunshiny morning the path she loved to tread. Judith was there as I approached; I knew the scarlet turning of the cape she wore, and I knew better the sheen of her soft brown hair, with the sun upon it. Had I been a man instead of a white-haired old woman I should have fallen in love with Judith Ware. Her very presence was a tonic, her cheeks aglow, her eyes alight with love of life—love that was infectious and inspiring. I waved my lavender scarf at her and she came running. The same Judith, unsobered by marriage. A happy marriage it must be, indeed, to keep that lightness to her smile.

"Happy!" laughed the rosy Judith, "and why should I not be a happy woman, with my true love returned from the war and sharing the little home we made together? It may be rather far for you to walk, so, while you rest here, I'll hasten the way back and bring Robert from where he is tied. Robert is our horse, and so dignified an animal that we scorn to call him Bob. I bought Robert for a song, and the shaky carriage that ages with him. I came today," went on Judith, "to gather nuts beneath the trees, to get red squawberries, and to find rosy apples—all for my Richard's birthday. A surprise, you see, which you will be able to share. I will decorate with the scarlet berries, the nuts will go on the pink cake I've colored with fruit juice, and the apples will be a centerpiece.

"Music pupils?" answered Judith to my questioning. "Oh, yes, I take them still. It—is necessary. But now, you see, while we must live so far away, I have to drive to town to give the lessons."

"Must live far away?" I persisted my questioning.

Judith nodded her bright head. "Because of Richard's lungs. The doctors say he must have country air—burned with the gas in the war—poor Richard's lungs."

Her momentary sadness was deliberately put aside. "You will love to talk with Richard," Judith assured me. "He is full of information upon the most interesting subjects—helpful, too, in his suggestions—if you might have need to ask of him. And Richard has not changed in appearance, with all the terror he has been through; a bit white about the temples, perhaps, but the same wave to his hair. Do you recall," asked a joyously relieved Judith, "how I used to wonder about him—confide to you all my doubts and fears?"

"Useless fears, my dear," I said to her, "all ending now so happily."

"Yes, useless," agreed Richard's wife. "Why, do you know the name we bestowed upon our home? 'The House of Happiness.' Poetic? That's Richard—but most appropriate—you shall see."

She left me seated on a log, while she went for Robert. My arms were laden with her gifts of red berries, nuts and apples. But soon she was back, gayly beckoning. I climbed into the shaky seat beside Judith and we drove through leafy lanes down a far, lonely way. In a clearing of brush I spied the little house. It was freshly white, with vines of crimson about the tiny portico. The window glass shone and just inside the hallway waited a wide chair. A fireside chair it appeared to be, with a low fire glowing before it, to take off the chill of fall. I saw, as Judith loosened my cloak, that a man sat in the chair, and I wondered that Judith's husband did not arise to welcome her guest.

"Mrs. Meredith, Richard," she presented me—"my dear friend and confidante—you will remember—while you were away."

The young man turned his face toward me—his fine, white face, with its border of silvering wavy hair. Then I understood why Judith's husband sat, holding out his hand to me—he was hopelessly crippled.

"But he has no pain," she hastened to relieve my apprehension.

His smile warmed the chill away that had gathered about my heart in sympathy.

"Sometimes," he admitted as the little wife carried her spoils to the kitchen. "Yes, there is pain; but Judith must not know. This is the house of happiness only, for it is the abode of love. Love," Judith's husband added gravely, "that has known refinement."

And, looking upon them both, I knew how this thing might be, and in my heart was no place for sympathy.

"You will stay to the birthday tea?" my brave young friend begged of me, and gladly I consented. Again and again, during my stay in the village, I came to them, and ever gladly. Prosperity might flaunt itself elsewhere; merriment, too, and gayety; but always I would walk more swiftly toward the house at the edge of the wood; always I would come away encouraged and refreshed, which is as it should be—when one has learned the way where happiness abides.

Prominent People

Venizelos, Leading Statesman of Europe

When M. Venizelos, recently elected president of the national assembly of Greece, visits the United States in April, as is now planned, Americans will have a chance to see one of the leading statesmen of Europe, whose recent history reads like a fairy tale. In 1910 Kaiser Wilhelm asked contemptuously, "Who is this man Venizelos?" In 1920, Venizelos had a leading role in deciding the destiny of the Near East, while the former kaiser was sawing wood in a Dutch garden with a sentry watching him.

Venizelos as first citizen of Greece came home triumphantly the other day from the bitter exile which former King Constantine's ephemeral victory imposed upon him three years ago.

The various factions in the Greek assembly have agreed to hold a plebiscite in March on the question of a republic or a monarchy. The first question before every voter will be whether he wants a republic or monarchy and the second question whether he wants the Glucksbourg dynasty, represented by King George, who is now in temporary exile, or some other dynasty.

About 2,000 republican army officers—all royalist officers have been retired—who forced the departure of King George have declared that they will not abide by an adverse plebiscite decision and will set up a republic by force. In that case Venizelos will resign, he says. In the meantime, Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, has learned that the League of Nations cannot find any bank in America or anywhere else that will float a $50,000,000 loan for the relief of the Greek refugees until a plebiscite has been held and Greece gets a stable government.

Palmer Takes Post in Merchant Marine

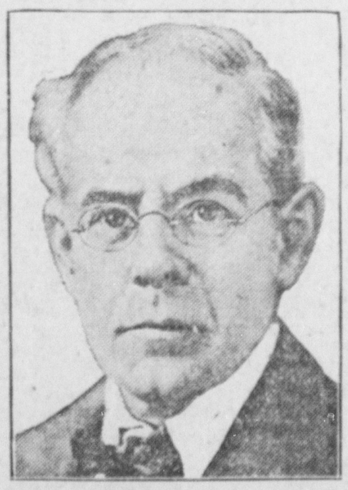
Leigh C. Palmer, former chief of the bureau of navigation of the Navy department, who has been selected by President Coolidge for the presidency of the Emergency Fleet corporation under a reorganization of the government's shipping administration, assumes the duties of this office well informed on the problems confronting the government in its attempt to operate a merchant marine.

Mr. Palmer, who resigned from the navy, soon after the conclusion of the World war, during which he served with the rank of admiral, has since April been the shipping board representative in Brazil. He recently returned to Washington and had been slated to sail for London to become the shipping board representative in Europe.

He is a native of Missouri, a graduate of the United States Naval academy, and has had extensive experience in shipping matters. The decision to make the Emergency Fleet corporation more responsible in the operation of the government's fleet, and to confine the functions of the shipping board to major questions of policy as contemplated in the law, was reached at a conference at the White House.

While the law contemplates that the major questions of policy shall be determined by the shipping board, it was the opinion of those attending the meeting that the Emergency Fleet corporation, which was designed to look after operations, has been steadily developing into a rubber-stamp organization. Under the lead of Mr. Palmer, the corporation will assume a more important role.

Cattell Elected A. A. A. S. President



Dr. J. McKeen Cattell of New York city has been elected president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, succeeding Prof. C. D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian institute, Washington. Dr. Cattell is head of the Psychological corporation and editor of Science.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, refused to comment upon the election of Dr. Cattell. It was Dr. Butler who, in 1917, recommended that Dr. Cattell, then professor of psychology at Columbia university, be "peremptorily dismissed."

Dr. Cattell's dismissal came through his activities in behalf of drafted men who did not wish to serve in the army during the war. With Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Dana, assistant professor in the department of English, Dr. Cattell was removed by a vote of the trustees.

Following his dismissal Dr. Cattell sued the university and the Alumni News for amounts aggregating $150,000. These suits were finally settled for a total of $45,000.

Illinois Has a Presidential Candidate

Illinois has a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency in Justice Floyd E. Thompson of the Illinois Supreme court. The announcement of his candidacy caused no surprise. Ever since Justice Thompson's election to the Illinois Supreme bench from a rock-ribbed Republican district, it has been the custom to mention him in connection with hopes of the Democratic party. His name has been used in connection with races for governor and for senator. It is not uncommon to hear him discussed as cabinet timber.

Thompson's defeat of Claude Chipperfield for the Supreme court was no mean achievement. He has, since he has been on the bench, distinguished himself by the amount of work he has done. Numerous opinions prepared by him have attracted attention.

Justice Thompson is a persuasive speaker. Addressing the Lake County Bar association's annual meeting he sounded a warning against "present day tendencies in government," defended the sovereignty of the individual citizen, upbraided "slacker citizens," denounced "government wreckers" who would curb the Supreme court, deplored government paternalism and the "reign of regulation" from which the nation is suffering and otherwise stated his views on questions of national importance.

Kills Baby to Save It Troubles of This Life

Because she didn't want her seventeen-month-old daughter to experience troubles that had been her lot, Mrs. Venie Evans of Batesville, Ark., slashed the infant's throat with a razor. Police say Mrs. Evans was released from a hospital for the insane two months ago.

FIREMEN DO ODD JOB OF RESCUING

Hoist Farmer From Well, but Can't Learn Name.

Westbury, L. I.—Charles Cosby, a farmer on the Old Country road, sped toward the village at dusk. He reached the outskirts breathless and pounded the fire gong. There was immediate activity among Fire Chief Buck and his 200 firemen. They ran hither, thither and yon, but found no fire. Then Cosby staggered up to Buck and told him that a Polish farmer, trailing a cow through the marshland near Meadow Brook, had fallen into an old well.

The chief peered down into the darkness, calling: "Who's there?" The answer came faintly:

"John Mzmzmznzzzski."

Chief Buck scratched his head. "The poor fellow caught cold," he said, "we must get him out."

But the chief wanted to know whom he was rescuing. He asked again. This time he heard:

"John Mogmogmogsky."

Chief Buck was exasperated. He dropped a rope into the well and pulled it up again. There was nothing on it. Then came the muffled voice a third time:

"I'm stuck." Thereupon Fireman Oliver Bransfield descended by a ladder. He toted buckets and a pick. He labored for an hour. Then he appeared with the Polish farmer, who said:

"Have any of you seen my cow?"

"What's your name?" asked Chief Buck sternly.

"John Bogbogzsyski."

They left him standing there.

Husband-Beater Made to Kiss Her Scared Mate

New York.—On complaint of Anthony Troskowiky, a mechanic of 30 West Sixty-eight street, his wife, Blanche, was arrested on a charge of beating her husband. Magistrate Levine, in West Side court, ordered the couple to embrace, kiss and make up. They complied gingerly with his order, but Blanche went out alone.

Asked why he was lingering, Anthony said he was afraid his wife would scratch his eyes out or pull his hair when he got to the door. An attendant saw him safely to the corner. Both husband and wife are of medium height and weight, and are in their early thirties. They were married in Hoboken six years ago.

"How many children have you?" the court inquired.

"We have no children, but we have plenty of fights," Troskowiky replied.

Wanderer Steals Pigeons in Park to Buy Food

New York.—Two pigeons stolen from Central park, were produced before Magistrate William A. Sweetser in the Yorkville court from the pockets of Edward Johnson, eighteen years old, who said he had no home. The birds flew about the courtroom and alighted on the molding while Johnson pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve one day in jail.

Johnson said he was out of work and wanted to sell the birds to get food. The pigeons were sent back to the park.

Owl Attacks and Wounds Two Hunters in Woods

Suffern, N. Y.—A large owl, attacked Deputy Game Warden Bradley and Harris Ellis, a carpenter, in the woods at Congers Lake, and before they shot it the bird had nearly pierced Ellis' eyes with its sharp beak and had scratched Bradley about the hands. The men had found the carcass of a freshly slain doe and were lifting it when the bird flew out of the nearby underbrush and attacked them.

Drown in Foot of Water

Washington. — Two men were drowned in a foot of water at the Dahlgren, Va., naval station after being overcome by gasoline fumes.

Norman R. Vreeland of Belleville, N. J., became unconscious while working in a pit, and Frank Leonard Crain of Galva, Ill., went to his assistance. Both lost their lives. Crain was chief quartermaster and Vreeland was an engineer.

With Mistress to Grave.

Spring Grove, O.—When the body of Mrs. Viola Dillingham was buried in the cemetery here, the body of her pet parrot was buried in a little grave nearby. The woman owned the parrot for fifteen years. It died the day after her death occurred.

Father of 23 at 70 Adopts Another.

Habor Beach, Mich.—Seventy years old and the father of 23 children, Peter Essenbacher, has adopted another child. The man was married twice. His second wife is still living.

Radio fans in this section who tuned in with WCAE on Friday evening heard Mrs. M. R. Krader's vocal selections as well as any of the programs that evening. Mrs. Krader sang under the radio name Miss Alberta. The evening was not as good for radio as possible, but Mrs. Krader's selections were well received. On account of the atmospheric conditions, a number of radio sets were not in good working order and varios radio operators were disappointed by not being able to tune in.

Dr. Joseph Taylor, of Pittsburgh, was called to the home town this week on account of the serious illness of his aged mother, Mrs. Anna Taylor, who has been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. W. D. Zerby. Mrs. Taylor collapsed when her daughter, the late Miss Gertrude Taylor, passed away. Miss Taylor had always remained with her mother and cared for her tenderly so that they were very much attached to each other and the separation was too much for the mother, who has not been well since then. Her condition has been grave during the past week. Dr. Taylor is a graduate of Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia and of the John Hopkins University of Baltimore, Md., he has made good in a marked degree and is one of the valued physicians and surgeons employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, working in the Pittsburgh district. Though a very busy man, who finds it difficult to secure a leave from duty, he will remain for a few more days with his mother.

Stealing of auto parts from parked cars seems to be one of the criminal actions gaining today. On Monday evening, W. F. McCoy was in his garage and heard a lot of noise just outside. He investigated and saw three young men run away. He says they were taking parts from an old chassis and that he recognized them, but will not make any information at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Harter left on Monday to attend the funeral services of W. H. Cox, who passed away on Sunday at his home in Franklin, Pa. Deceased was about 40 years old and died very unexpectedly just after eating a hearty meal. He was married to Miss Helen Sechler, a daughter of Robert and Ada Sechler, former residents, of Bellefonte. His sister-in-law, Miss Myra Sechler, who has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Cox, discovered his body a few minutes after he had dropped over dead.

The Elks are contemplating some improvements to their pretty home on High street. Prof. A. L. Kocher, of the Pennsylvania State College and an authority on architecture, has been engaged to draw plans. Nothing definite has been decided at this time but it is understood that erection of an addition at the rear of the building, with a large dance hall and perhaps bowling alleys, is in mind. The committee had been considering taking out a partition and putting the two rooms at the west side of the hall into one big room but Prof. Kocher advised that this should not be done.

Paul M. Burk, who had been efficiently serving the public as local operator in the Western Union office during the illness of Lee Miller, departed on Tuesday morning for Jacksonville, Fla., to become manager of the Western Union there. Mr. Miller has had quite a siege of lagrippe and complications and is not able to return to work as yet. The company sent S. C. Demer, of Latrobe, former district manager near Philadelphia, to Bellefonte to have charge of the local office until Mr. Miller is able to return. The new quarters of the Western Union, in the Bush House, are being much improved by papering, painting and new equipment. The latter is especially attractive, of natural finish quartered white oak, with marble base and heavy plate glass writing surfaces.

Lieut. Duncan, of Troop C., of Lewistown, was a Bellefonte visitor yesterday.

George Fisher, of Boalsburg, was a business visitor in town on Wednesday.

At a recent meeting of the Associated Business Men of Bellefonte it was decided to close the stores and business places of Bellefonte on Thursday afternoons during the coming summer, as usual.

A marriage licenses was issued at Cumberland, Md., on Tuesday to Ward Montgomery Green, formerly of Bellefonte but now of Altoona, and Miss Anna Grace Elizabeth Gossett, also of Altoona.

LIVE STOCK REPORT

Study of Statistics of Much Interest to Farmers.

In a table just received from the United States department of agriculture for Pennsylvania and sent out by G. L. Morgan, agricultural statistician, the following is gleaned:

Horses have been steadily declining on farms in the Keystone state since 1921. In 1921 there were 496,000 horses at $121 each, $60,016,000; 1922, 496,000 at $112, $55 552,000; 1923, 491,000 at $110, $54 010,000; and 1924, 486,000 at $99, $48,114,000.

In the same period, mules increased in number from 54,000 to 55,000 but decreased in value from $7,614,000 to $6,050 000.

In 1921 there were 1,050,000 milk cows valued at $80,850 000. In 1922, 1923 and 1924 the report gives the number each year as 1,071,000 but the value changed from $60 in 1922 and 1923 to $62 in 1924, making the total value this year $66,402,000.

Sheep showed little change. In 1921 there were 478,000 and in 1924, there were 486,000, valued at $3,759,600.

Swine on Jan. 1, 1924, were 1,212,000 as compared to 1,143,000 in 1921.

The average wages being paid for hired farm labor at present is as follows: By the month with board $38, by the month without board $58, by the day with board, including piece work $2.50, by the day without board, including piece work $3.30. The supply at present is estimated at about 92 percent of normal.

De Coursey—Haupt.

Frederick De Coursey, of Bellefonte, and Miss Catherine Haupt, of near town, were united in marriage at a pretty wedding at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore B. Haupt, on Monday evening. The beautiful ring ceremony was used, Rev. Reed O. Steely, pastor of the United Evangelical church, performed the ceremony. About 50 guests were present and a most delicious wedding supper, with chicken as the piece de resistance, was served. The wedding ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock. Louis Haupt and Miss Isabel Sprankle, cousins of the bride, were the attendants. The bride was attired in purple and carried a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid carried a large bouquet of roses. After the wedding, Rev. Steely christened three of the relatives of the bride—Donald Dale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Haupt, Bess and Violet, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haupt. Mr. and Mrs. De Coursey have best wishes of "The Republican" and a host of friends.

Basket Ball Results.

The Bellefonte Academy quintet had troubles of their own during the week-end and played only one of the three games of basket ball scheduled, losing on Friday evening to their strong rivals, the Pitt Freshmen, by the score of 46—36. A freight wreck at Mill Hall delayed traffic and prevented the local team from reaching Indiana to play the Normal team there last Thursday evening. The game on Saturday evening at Windber was cancelled.

The Bellefonte High School was defeated by Tyrone High at the latter place on Friday evening, 46—17. The Bellefonte Reserves were nosed out at Milroy by the High School team there on Friday evening, 25—27. The Bellefonte High School girls maintained their winning streak and defeated the Milroy girls, 2—0, on Friday evening. The Milroy girls walked off their floor about the middle of the last half of the game.

Facts.

The usual custom pursued by the larger city stores in Februsry Sales is to mark up furniture thirty-five to forty per cent above the regular price and then advertize a fifty per cent reduction. The February Sales of W. R. Brachbill always have been honest. Select the furnishings desired and deduct twenty cents on the dollar from the original price tag, gives his February Sales price. Besides no inferior goods made for special sales purposes are on his floors. This year the annual twenty per cent discount sale opens February first and positively closes February sixteenth. There are no spectacular methods used during this period—just a plan 20% reduction from fairly priced merchandise to stimulate buying during the fore-part of February, always a dull month in the furniture business.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

MRS. COTTONTAIL RABBIT

"I must go and look for a nice summer home," said Mrs. Cottontail Rabbit. "Things get taken so quickly and once the warm weather sets in it will be hard indeed to find a home.

"I will tell you where there are some nice homes," said Miss Cottontail, "but first you must tell me whether you would like to have your own new little hole or would you like to rent one from one of the prairie dogs or badgers.

"Of course the prairie dogs and badgers would never collect the rent, for their holes which are still to be had are ones which they have left for good."

"Of course," said Mrs. Cottontail. "Of course that is true. Well, I think I would like to have my own dear little burrow. I would like a nice, cozy hole under a rock or perhaps in a hollow log.

"I think the last would be best of all."

"It would be nice," said Miss Cottontail, "though of course it would be more trouble."

"Well," said Mrs. Cottontail, "nothing is too much trouble for me to do for my little home. You see I am but a little rabbit bride and I want to have everything so cozy and so pretty."

"Of course," said Miss Cottontail, "and as I was always your dearest friend and am still a great friend of yours I take such an interest in what you are about to do."

Mrs. Cottontail took a number of suggestions which Miss Cottontail made and then she went off to fix up her home, for she did decide upon an old hollow log.

"I Will Tell You Where."

Then came the dear little babies to Mrs. Cottontail, and Mrs. Cottontail had their nest crib so warm for them. It was made of grasses—nice, old, soft grasses—and she had lined the nest crib with soft fur from her own back.

It was very close to her own room.

"Oh, yes, the babies had the loveliest of nest cribs, and it did feel very soft and nice to their little naked bodies. For the fur would not come on their bodies until they were older.

They were born quite blind and unlike their cousins, the hares, who could see and who had much fur when they came into the world.

But Mother Cottontail thought her babies were the dearest babies in all the world and when she left them for a few moments at times to get good things for the family larder she would cover them over with leaves.

"Little darlings, my dear little baby cottontails," she would whisper to them, "keep very still and mother will soon be back."

And soon again she was back for she wouldn't leave them for long and then she would say when she got back:

"And my little darlings were good little bunnies, weren't they?"

And she would hold them close to her warm, furry body and she would sing them little Baby Cottontail Rabbit nest songs. This was one she sang often to them in her funny little voice and as she sang her nose would wiggle at the same time:

My darlings, my darlings, my own little dears,
Pray never cause Mother to have to shed tears.
Be careful, be careful and grow to be strong,
And stay with your mother for ever so long.
She loves you so much, she loves you so really,
She loves you so fondly, she loves you so dearly.
Go to sleep, each dear little bunny,
Mother Cottontail thinks you look sweet and not funny;
Go to sleep, each dear little bunny.

Then, after a time, Mother Cottontail would sing again to her babies and this would be her song:

You're so cunning, you're so sweet.
You have such darling little feet,
You each have a precious little head,
Now go to sleep in your warm nest-bed.

And sometimes when there had been some noise and the babies had awakened suddenly Mother Cottontail sang this song:

Be quiet now and rest,
For that will be best.
Then they'll think you're not here
And we can be without fear.

But the song they loved the best of all was this little one:

Go to sleep and quietly rest
On Mother Cottontail's warm, furry breast.
She loves you, she loves you, you need have no fear,
And when you awake you'll still find her here!
